Fred Cole, 70, of Union Center was in serious condition at the Kingston Hospital today as a result of injuries which he received Sunday afternoon when struck by a bicycle as he was walking on the Union Center-Rifton highway at Union Center.

Brought to the Kingston Hospital by ambulance he was treated for a fractured skull, fractured arm and other injuries.

The aged man, who had previously suffered from a stroke, was struck by a bicycle operated by Roger Guzman, 18, Union Center which was being operated down a steep hill not far from the Cole home about 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

An investigation was made by the sheriff's office and state police from Highland.

Said He Was Confused

According to a report filed by Guzman, Cole became confused at the approach of the cycle. The operator swerved first to one side to avoid the pedestrian and then back again to avoid Cole who also changed his course. He reported Cole turned into the path of the cycle and Guzman said he was unable to avoid the pedestrian.

With Guzman on the bicycle at the time was Donald Trowbridge, 7, of 303 Delaware Avenue. Mrs. William Cole of Ulster Park notified the sheriff's office of the accident and Deputy Sheriff William Thompson was assigned to make an investigation.

Cole is a son of the late Augustus Cole, a retired New York stationary engineer, who was one of the oldest Civil War veterans in this area at the time of his death several years ago. Fred Cole has a brother, Frank Cole, who resides in Florida.

Forest Fires Rage

Imperil Homes

(By The Associated Press)
Forest fires, spurred by winds and high temperatures, covered more than 15,000 acres of Pacific northwest timberlands today.

Near Portland, Ore., yesterday the little suburban residential community of Donny Slope was partially evacuated as a forest fire threatened the 250 homes. Inadequate water supply made fighting the blaze difficult. The fire spread from a small blaze which started Saturday in the Portland city limits.

Largest blaze in the northwest was to the south in the Siuslaw National Forest, southwest of Eugene, Ore. An estimated 8,000 to 10,000 acres were charred in the blaze which started Friday. It still was out of control last night as 300 loggers attempted to ditch a fire line around it.

Farther south near Rosenberg, Ore., 1,200 acres of privately owned timber lands were ablaze.

Three Major Fires

There were three major fires in Washington state.

The little city of Newhall in the northwest section of the state was threatened by a 2,000 acre forest blaze yesterday. Flames were halted, however, by a backfire.

Boy Scouts' Cleanliness Causes Europeans to Marvel

By RICHARD O'REGAN

Bad Ischl, Austria, Aug. 20 (AP)—European boys are marveling at the standards of American health and cleanliness maintained at the recent Seventh World Boy Scout Jamboree and at the lack of flies and mosquitoes at the camp.

Credit for the absence of insects and the fact that the jamboree escaped any serious epidemic goes to the Boy Scouts of America, the U. S. Public Health Service and the U. S. Army.

The high American health standards on which the American Boy Scouts insisted for the 629 boys who came here from the United States worked for the benefit of all 15,000 scouts attending the jamboree.

a single American boy was hospitalized for sickness or treated for major injuries. On the other hand, an average of 200 boys a day from other lands were treated in the camp dispensary—run largely by the U. S. Army—for sickness and injuries.

This figure might well have been more had it not been for the presence of American medical officers.

When Ray Bryan of Greenvale, Long Island, a member of the American Boy Scouts' executive staff, was sent here to make arrangements for the arrival of American scouts, he asked the U. S. Army to make sure the water supply was clean.

Cherbourg, France, Aug. 20 (AP)—The delegation of 650 American Boy Scouts who attended the world jamboree at Bad Ischl, Austria, sailed for home yesterday on the ship Homeland, which takes 10 days on the Atlantic run.

Instead of the watch, another gift, not yet selected, will be forwarded to the Boys Club as a memorial to its founder and director, "Pop" Fuhrman.

The program will go on as scheduled Wednesday, and may be heard over WKY from 9:15 to 9:30 a.m.

Lack of expressed opposition for candidates in tomorrow's Primary Day balloting indicated to political leaders this morning that the selections of both Republican and Democratic party unofficial conventions will be endorsed as candidates by the enrolled voters.

Balloting will be at all the regular polling places in Ulster county from 12 noon until 9 p. m. tomorrow. Enrolled voters of Republican, Democratic, Liberal and American Labor parties are eligible to vote for their candidates at that time.

Candidates named at the Republican unofficial conventions and expected to be endorsed by the enrolled voters are Harry D. Sutton for county clerk, Ernest A. Kelly for coroner, both on the county-wide ballot, and Oscar V. Newkirk for mayor and Joseph Kelly for alderman-at-large on the city ticket.

Democratic party delegates at their unofficial conventions named Fred Dusing of New Paltz for county clerk, Raymond A. McAndrew for mayor and Fred C. Harder for alderman-at-large. No unofficial Democratic candidate for coroner was named.

Two Groups Meet to Talk At Kaesong

Chinese Patrol Leader Is Killed; Nam Says Act Is Violation of Agreement

Will Meet Tuesday

No Report Is Given Out About Progress for Cease-Fire

Munsan, Korea, Aug. 20 (AP)—Allied and Communist subcommittees met briefly in Kaesong today as a new crisis threatened efforts to stop the Korean war.

General headquarters in Tokyo said "partisan forces of either side" may be trying to wreck armistice negotiations.

The statement was in reply to Red charges that UN forces ambushed a Red patrol inside Kaesong's five-mile neutral zone Sunday. A Chinese patrol leader was killed and Chinese soldier seriously injured.

North Korean Lt. Gen. Nam Il, chief Red cease-fire delegate, told a reporter Bridges of New Hampshire—want to risk World III by "excessive" demands in Korea, they ought to say to flatly.

They blamed what they labeled "appeasement" policies of Mr. Truman and Secretary of State Acheson for the loss of China to the Communists. They said the Yalta agreement spawned most of America's difficulties with communism in Asia.

Harriman Reports To Quit Tehran if Iranians Quibble

Tehran, Iran, Aug. 20 (AP)—An informed source said today W. Averell Harriman has threatened to leave for Washington unless the Iranians negotiate "in good faith" with the British on their oil dispute. A breakdown in the crucial talks is believed near.

Premier Mohammed Mossadegh was reported visibly shaken by the strong words from the usually soft-spoken Harriman, President Truman's trouble shooter here.

Mossadegh met with Harriman and Richard Stokes, chief British negotiator, this morning and observers doubted if he would make any real concession which could make the talks successful.

Harriman is the only person who has kept the talks going this long. Mossadegh has been trying to keep the United States on his side of the oil dispute, and Harriman's threat to walk out has at least postponed his formal rejection of British settlement offers.

The Iranians reportedly handed the British set of counter-proposals yesterday rejecting four of the eight British points. It was to have been published last night.

Not in Good Faith

Harriman reportedly told the Iranians, after he saw the counter offer, that they were not negotiating in good faith and threatening to make a public statement supporting the British position if the Iranians published their offer.

British sources said Stokes is preparing to leave for London Wednesday unless the talks take a turn for the better. The head of the British mission says he has gone as far as he can in proposing a settlement.

It is doubtful if Mossadegh, at this point, could compromise on nationalization of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company's properties without committing political suicide.

Harriman reportedly has told Mossadegh the United States would condemn strongly any move to take over these properties without proper compensation. He is reported to have lost patience with the Iranians because they have refused to budge from their demands whereas the British have made concessions.

AUGUST LAMENT

In June—when the time for vacation was nigh I asked for the two middle weeks of July; The heat was salt, the sun was hot, the heat toil.

A heat wave would sizzle the people to toil Beginning the 10th, for a fortnight, at least July would be heartless to folks in the East.

The weather turned out to be rainy and cool And blankets were needed at night to rule;

The heat that the almanac said was in store Arrived when I found myself working once more

And August, so help me, is hotter, I'm sure Than any we've ever been known to endure.

I'm saying "good-bye" every weekend. It seems To friends who are thriling with holiday dreams;

They're leaving the heat and humidity's grip And smile as they mention my almanac's July.

Perhaps you are one who signed up for July And find yourself toiling and wondering why.

But don't be discouraged—next summer we'll go In August—the almanac warn us of snow!

Prisoners Begin 5th Eatless Day

Salem, Ore., Aug. 20 (AP)—Prisoners at the Oregon State Penitentiary began their fifth consecutive day without meals today.

Warden George Alexander ordered their food cut off Thursday after they refused to go to work. The non-work move followed a sitdown strike by some of the 1,400 convicts last Tuesday.

All prison activities have been halted and the men are locked in their cells. None has asked for medical attention because of lack of food, the penitentiary physician reported.

Alexander said that food would be withheld until the prisoners agreed to go back to work. The men probably can go without meals for several more days, another prison official said.

Harriman Reports To Quit Tehran if Iranians Quibble

Tehran, Iran, Aug. 20 (AP)—An informed source said today W. Averell Harriman has threatened to leave for Washington unless the Iranians negotiate "in good faith" with the British on their oil dispute. A breakdown in the crucial talks is believed near.

Premier Mohammed Mossadegh was reportedly visible shaken by the strong words from the usually soft-spoken Harriman, President Truman's trouble shooter here.

Mossadegh met with Harriman and Richard Stokes, chief British negotiator, this morning but observers doubted if he would make any real concession which could make the talks successful.

Harriman is the only person who has kept the talks going this long. Mossadegh has been trying to keep the United States on his side of the oil dispute, and Harriman's threat to walk out has at least postponed his formal rejection of British settlement offers.

The Iranians reportedly handed the British a set of counter-proposals yesterday rejecting four of the eight British points. It was to have been published last night.

Not in Good Faith

Harriman reportedly told the Iranians, after he saw the counter offer, that they were not negotiating in good faith and threatened to make a public statement supporting the British position if the Iranians published their offer.

British sources said Stokes is preparing to leave for London this point, could compromise on nationalization of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company's properties without committing political suicide.

Harriman reportedly has told Mossadegh the United States would condemn strongly any move to take over these properties without proper compensation. He is reported to have lost patience with the Iranians because they have refused to budge from their demands whereas the British have made concessions.

Prisoners Begin 5th Eatless Day

Salem, Ore., Aug. 20 (AP)—Prisoners at the Oregon State Penitentiary began their fifth consecutive day without meals today.

Warden George Alexander ordered their food cut off Thursday after they refused to go to work. The non-work move followed a sitdown strike started by some of the 1,400 convicts last Tuesday.

All prison activities have been halted and the men are locked in their cells. None has asked for medical attention because of lack of food, the penitentiary physician reported.

Alexander said that food would be withheld until the prisoners agreed to go back to work. The men probably can go without meals for several more days, another prison official said.

Evening Verse
(For Your Scrapbook)
By DANIEL J. O'CONNOR

AUGUST LAMENT

In June—when the time for vacation was nigh
I asked for the two middle weeks of July;
The almanac said that according to Hoyle
A heat wave would sizzle the people who toll
Beginning the 10th, for a fortnight, at least
July would be heartless to folks in the East.

The weather turned out to be rainy and cool
And blankets were needed at night, in store;

Arrived when I found myself working once more
And August, so help me, is hotter, I'm sure.

Then any we've ever been known to endure.

I'm saying "good-bye" every week-end, it seems;

To friends who are thrilling with holiday dreams;

They're leaving the heat and humidity's grip
And smile at their mention in the almanac tip.

Perchance you are one who signed up for J. W.

But don't be disheartened—next summer we'll go

In August—the almanacs warn us of snow!

Measles Increase In City, Report

Measles continue prevalent in the county and city with the disease on the upturn in the city of Kingston.

This increase in measles during the summer season when schools are closed is rather unusual and emphasizes the fact that the spread of communicable disease is not controlled by the closing of schools.

During July there were 72 cases of measles reported to the Board of Health, 11 of them in the city and 61 in the county. Chickenpox was found to some extent in the city where six cases were reported and in the county three for a total of nine reported cases. Only one case of mumps was reported in the city in July and seven from the county. One case of German measles and one case of scarlet fever were reported in July.

Suffers Severe Cut In Bathroom Fall

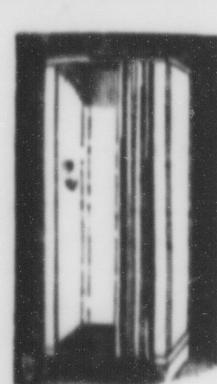

Austin MacDonald, 47, suffered a severe cut on his arm in the bathroom of his apartment at 611 Delaware avenue on Saturday night, police reported.

After being treated by Dr. Anthony L. Mauceri, MacDonald was taken by ambulance to the Benedictine Hospital, where his condition today was reported as good.

MacDonald was found about 11:20 p. m. Saturday on the bathroom floor by his wife, who told Patrolmen Walter Van Steenburgh and James Harbeck that he apparently fell and accidentally cut himself while getting out of the bathtub.

Police said the cut was on the right forearm near a main artery and that MacDonald suffered considerable loss of blood.

Allies Blame

have been a deliberate move by "politically-guided" Korean Red civilians to break the armistice talks and prolong the war—with the Chinese doing most of the fighting.

UN Statement

The UN command said evidence found by the joint allied-Communist liaison investigating group showed no allied military units were in the area at the time. The statement added:

"The investigation failed completely to identify the armed hand as belonging to any United Nations command military formation."

An allied spokesman, Brig. Gen. William P. Nuckles, said an element in the Korean Red government—or the regime itself—would "like to see the war continued by the Chinese."

Nam Il's official protest tried to lay the blame on the allies. His long statement to Joy, broadcast by Peiping radio, asserted that a nine-man patrol was "attacked by over 30 armed men of your side. Patrol leader Yao Ching Hsiang and fighter Wang Jen Yutan were immediately seriously wounded."

Two More Shots Fired

He said two more fatal shots were fired into Yao. Nam Il went on in the Reds' propaganda line:

"Ever since both sides reached agreement on the neutral zone of Kaesong, your side has violated the agreement again and again. Your aircraft has continuously violated the neutral zone by flying over it, has repeatedly strafed supply vehicles of our delegation, armed men from your side have fired frequently on the neutral zone."

"Our side has lodged one protest after another without any satisfactory reply ever coming from your side."

None of his charges was confirmed by any allied source.

Two Injured in This Automobile

An accident at 12:20 o'clock Saturday afternoon south of Port Ewen on Route 9W resulted in damage to the above automobile in which two passengers were injured and taken to Kingston Hospital by ambulance. The car, traveling south, was operated by Irving Horn, 38, of New York. Police said he attempted to make a left turn and was in collision with another automobile driven by Andrew Van Brugen, 28, of Trenton, N. J., who was northbound. State police from Highland investigated. Taken to the hospital were Esther Horn, who was thrown from the car, and Becky Schneider, a passenger in the Horn car. They were treated for contusions. The accident happened at the Orchard garage. Sheriff Cluett, Schantz and Deputy Sheriff Earl Conroy went to the scene and assisted in directing traffic. (James Aner Photo) stross count of property damage and death.

Hurricane Howls

It was moving in a west northwesterly path at about 14 miles an hour, and was tabbed "large and dangerous."

After bringing terror, death and destruction to Jamaica, the hurricane lashed a glancing blow, powered by 92-mile-an-hour winds, at the British Island of Grand Cayman.

Crashes Over Island

Then sweeping along a wild northwesterly path, the big blow over Cozumel Island and fell with tremendous force against the Yucatan Peninsula.

A 25-mile strip of land withstood the shock.

At Cozumel Island, details of the hurricane's damage were lacking. Radio stations on the island shut down as the storm approached.

At Isla Mujeres, a small island south of Cozumel, the inhabitants of the village had swarmed into the streets in panic, the island's radio reported shortly before it too shut down.

It was on Cozumel that Hernando Cortez began his conquest of Mexico in battles with the civilized Mayan Indians. The island is sparsely populated.

Heaviest Blow at Kingston

Kingston suffered the hurricane's heaviest blow against Jamaica. The entire island was hard hit by the ferocious winds and the 17-inch deluge that accompanied.

At Port Royal at the end of a thin, sandy strip of land that bounds Kingston on the south, every building was damaged—not a single structure remained in sound condition.

Authorities at Kingston sought to round up the 70 prisoners who gained their freedom when the big blow toppled a wall of the island's penitentiary.

The weary chore of restoring order and essential services was being pushed as rapidly as conditions on the island allowed.

Ninety per cent of the rich banana crop in some areas was blown down, but another important crop—coconuts—suffered less damage.

Forecasters meanwhile kept a weather eye lifted toward a new "area of suspicion" kicking up the waters to the northeast of Puerto Rico. In this warm spawning ground of hurricanes, there were telltale signs—barometric pressures were tumbling and winds were shifting.

Brigadier Enters Morgan Battle

Winchester, Va., Aug. 20 (AP)—A new clarion call—"hold on to General Morgan"—was sounded Saturday in behalf of Winchester's fight to retain the grave of Revolutionary War hero Daniel Morgan.

The cry came from retired Brig. Gen. Bryan Conrad, a native of this Shenandoah Valley city.

He advised his home townsmen to stand firm and yield not an inch in their struggle with Cowpens, S. C., over the remains of Morgan, reposing these 150 years at Winchester's Mt. Hebron Cemetery.

In a telegram from his present home at Highland Falls, N. Y., Conrad declared:

"Hold on to General Morgan. Don't give in. As far as I know Winchester has only produced two brigadier generals in 200 years."

"I don't want to feel lonesome when I reach Mt. Hebron. Cowpens was only one of Morgan's battles. Suppose Montreal asks for the corpse."

Montreal aside, the folks of Cowpens think Morgan's feat of killing and wounding 200 British soldiers and taking prisoner another 600 won him such everlasting fame at the South Carolina town as to merit his tomb being enshrined there.

Big Allocations Asked in New York

New York, Aug. 20 (AP)—Budget allocations of $971,723,670—the largest total in New York city's history, have been asked for 1952 by various city departments and agencies for public works.

John J. Bennett, chairman of the City Planning Commission, in a summary made public yesterday, said that additional requests also were received for $2,158,821,172 covering the 1953-57 capital program for proposed public works projects.

Bennett said that financial aid from the state and federal governments was "imperative" if the city was to meet all its long-range capital needs.

The City Planning Commission begins discussions today on the 1952 budget allocations with departmental and agency officials. These hearings are closed with public sessions scheduled for October.

Capital budget allocations of $907,288,348 were sought last year for the current fiscal year, but the final total was fixed at $478,761,756.

Brown and the American scout leaders placed at Austrian disposal large quantities of DDT and chlorodane. Brown made it his daily business to see that not only latrines, but water outlets and showers were kept from becoming breeding areas for infectious disease carriers.

The Austrian public health people and hundreds of boys, Brown said, "told us it was the first time they had ever seen a camp without flies."

Nine Are Injured In Parkway Crash

Orange, Conn., Aug. 20 (AP)—Nine persons were injured one of them critically, yesterday in a three-car collision which tied up traffic on the Wilbur Cross Parkway here for more than an hour. State Police listed the injured as:

Marilyn Wade, 10, of Armonk, who is on the danger list at New Haven Hospital with internal injuries.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Wade, her parents.

Emil Wade, Jr., 9, their son.

Mr. and Mrs. Eric Alkins, of Worcester, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Belanger of Arlington, Mass.

Richard Belanger, 9, their son.

State Police, who have not completed their investigation, said the accident occurred at a "feeder" to the northbound lane of the parkway. They conjectured that one of the cars was entering from the feeder and was struck.

The impact, police said, caused the Wade car to turn over several times. All three cars were extensively damaged.

Mr. and Mrs. Wade were treated at New Haven Hospital for lacerations and abrasions, and their son, Emil, for a lacerated forehead.

Average Income Gains

Washington, Aug. 20 (AP)—American income in 1950 averaged $1,436 for every man, woman and child, according to the Commerce Department. This was a gain of $116, or nine per cent, over 1949 and was the highest dollar total in history, the department added in a report Saturday. A 6.5 per cent advance in the cost of living plus a rise in taxes cut down the net gain. Average incomes ranged from $698 in Mississippi to $1,909 in Delaware and $1,986 in the District of Columbia.

Seven Persons Injured

Westboro, Mass., Aug. 20 (AP)—Mrs. Rose Shulman, 55, of Scarsdale, N. Y., and six other persons were injured in an automobile crash on the Boston turnpike yesterday. The injured were taken to a Worcester hospital. State police said one of the two cars involved in the collision jumped a grass plot dividing the highway and struck the other vehicle.

Erie Train Derailed

Port Jervis, N. Y., Aug. 20 (AP)—An Erie Railroad locomotive left the rails and ripped up 300 feet of track at Lackawaxen, Pa., about 18 miles west of here today. No one was injured. The accident blocked the Erie's main lines, forcing re-routing of trains between Jersey City and Binghamton, N. Y., over the Delaware, Lackawaxen and Western Railroad. The derailment occurred after a four-section diesel locomotive of an eastbound, 149-car freight train had stopped in the Lackawaxen yards to shuttle one defective car onto a siding. The locomotive shoved the car to the siding, and was pulling back on the main line to rehook to the train when it went through an open switch and left the tracks.

THE TOTAL OF TAXES

The Bureau of the Census has figured out that the taxes collected last year by federal, state and local governments amounted to $360 for each man, woman and child. That was the record total up to that time, but this year's collections will be much higher and next year they will be still higher.

If you are the so-called average man, you could dig out your tax records for last year and discover that you paid no more than three or four hundred dollars in income taxes. Maybe there was another fifty or a hundred in real estate taxes, or maybe you rent your home and own no real estate. Distributing these payments among your average family of four, you find that you paid no more than a couple of hundred dollars each in visible 1950 taxes, probably much less. You figure you got off easy.

But you didn't. The taxes you can see—income tax, real estate tax and a few others—are only about a third of the total. Every time you bought a pack of cigarettes or a tankful of gasoline, or paid the rent or an installment on the mortgage, you paid more taxes. There were taxes in every movie ticket, every restaurant check and every bus or rail fare. The taxes are not always itemized, but they are there nevertheless, for the price of everything you buy includes not only the visible excise taxes levied on many items but also a share of the other taxes paid by the people who made, transported and sold the item.

You paid your $360 per person in 1950, perhaps more. If you are in average circumstances you paid almost three dollars in other taxes for every dollar you paid in federal income tax. By multiplying $360 by the number of persons in your family, and adding about forty per cent for the increases now in effect or being made, you can get a rough idea what the cost of big government is to you.

ZEAL AND JOY

"In our zeal to prolong life," said a doctor recently, "let us not, without good cause, lessen the joy of living." Dr. Robert L. Levy of New York was talking to the American Medical Association about the care of heart patients, and suggested that often they may be spared many of the usual restrictions without greatly lessening their chances for survival. This is a matter of the doctor's judgment, of course, as everything must depend on the condition of the individual.

The same advice might be applied to many life situations which are a matter of individual judgment. In zeal for safety and security, we sometimes pass up pleasures and rich experiences because they seem to involve risk. It has been pointed out many times that overindulgent parents, bent on providing everything for their children, may give up their own right to joyful living and spoil the children at the same time. The example has often been cited of the frugal person who saves everything for his old age and then is unable to get any pleasure from what he has saved. Planning for tomorrow is necessary and wise, but today is with us.

How many times does a person pass up some bit of fun for no better cause than to preserve his appearance of personal dignity? Zeal is an admirable quality, but it can be overexercised.

Life becomes boring for some when they have nothing to talk about, for others when they find themselves no longer talked about.

GOOD DAYS AND BAD

Good days and bad days, in reference to the weather, have their uses. There are times when it is most desirable that the air and sky be clear and the sun pleasantly bright, with enough of a breeze to fan the cheek but not enough to bend the trees. This is for the day when a man wants to play golf. At other times it is desirable that the rain descend in torrents, or at least with

MONEY FOR CULTURE

Every once in a while, I come across a program on the radio from Europe that is paid for with the American taxpayers' money. Marshall Plan money, UNESCO money, I suppose Point IV money and now Ford Foundation money (not from the taxpayers), goes to preserve European and Asiatic culture.

If the American people like to spend their money that way and permit Congress to appropriate it to save European and Asiatic culture, particularly music, that is certainly a better way than sending Howard Fast's books to Europe as representative of American literature or sending Orson Welles to South America as an example of our best. This sort of thing costs the taxpayer plenty of money in the years of our alliance with Joe Stalin and of the so-called good neighbor policy.

However, if we are going to put a tax on culture at home? The Metropolitan Opera Association occasionally puts forth a mild bleat that if opera is not relieved of taxation, it will close down. Actually, in the United States there are few active and constant opera companies, the Metropolitan being the most important.

Now, if Americans dislike opera and prefer juke-boxes, that is their business, but on the radio, the Metropolitan program of the Texas Company is a great success; such a program of heavy and light opera as the Chicago Tribune provides on Saturday nights is notable, and the audition programs attract attention. In fact, many radio listeners prefer good music to the murders which have recently become a sponsor's delight as a way to keep off controversial subjects.

That opera, which is a non-profit enterprise, should be taxed when churches and schools are not taxed, is characteristic of the intellect of lawmakers, who lack an understanding of the breadth and fullness of human culture. Certainly it makes no sense to tax American opera and at the same time to subsidize European opera and symphony orchestras. If we are going to spend money on music, why not start at home? Or if we dislike music so much that we must tax it, why subsidize it in Europe?

The top American symphony orchestras face the same problem. The rich tycoons and dowagers who used to make up the deficits are no longer rich, and the parvenus who have discovered windfalls in war and the New Deal have no appreciation of music. The result is that the Philharmonic in New York is always in financial difficulties, and even the "Boston" survives because of its profits at Tanglewood to which thousands flock to listen to good music admirably played.

Tanglewood raises a special problem. It is a unique atmosphere in the Berkshires, where in spite of shameful roads and difficult access, an audience that has reached close to 20,000 at times, comes from all parts of the United States.

But the orchestral part of Tanglewood is not the story. It is the school that Serge Koussevitzky founded and nurtured, where half the students are on scholarships, that is really important. And although the school is only about 10 years old, more or less, as we say up here, it has already produced a galaxy of American musicians at Tanglewood to which thousands flock to listen to good music admirably played.

That school has a spirit, a faith that is rarely to be found in such places and much of it was due to Koussevitzky's love of young people, of whom he never tired. He created a young people's atmosphere at Tanglewood, so that even those who came only to be seen were subdued by these talented youngsters into worshipful silence.

And now that Koussevitzky is dead, what will become of the school and its scholarships and its inspiration? This year, things have gone well at Tanglewood in the sense that the group that had worked with Koussevitzky continued, and Charles Munch cooperated with characteristic French wit.

Certainly it is as important to keep the school at Tanglewood alive as it is to keep European and Asiatic schools alive. I am not denying the virtue of the latter when I ask for fitting consideration for our own.

There are those who are tone deaf or who prefer "Old Smokey," which is delightful, to Beethoven's Missa Solemnis, which is also thought-provoking. But the history of man is garnished by music of each people's own devising. America is producing music, beyond the hurdy-gurdy stage, in the American idiom. Surely a work of love should not be taxed.

YOUR BLOOD PRESSURE

I write often about high blood pressure because it is the condition (it is not a disease) most frequently discussed by the majority of men and women. This is only natural, since it is known that high blood pressure, due to hardening of the arteries, is the cause of heart strokes and brain strokes. However I, and other health writers, while always mindful of the dangers of high blood pressure, want everybody to know that high blood pressure is not a death sentence.

If you are the one out of every five adults who has high blood pressure, you are probably unnecessarily alarmed. There is no reason for worrying yourself into bed. Patients who would have been condemned twenty years ago to a useless life are now advised to live normally, taking sensible precautions.

While the cause of high blood pressure or hardening of the arteries is not fully known, enough has been learned about treatment and management that the wise physician would no more prescribe an invalid's routine for the average patient than he would recommend getting a job as a longshoreman. The key is moderation in living habits.

I am quoting from recent booklet "Your Blood Pressure and Your Arteries" by Alexander L. Crosby, published by Public Affairs Pamphlets, 22 East 38th street, New York 16, N. Y. The price is 20 cents a copy.

There is a hereditary background in about 40 per cent of cases of high blood pressure and the average age of onset is about 32. "It might be called the doctors' disease, because hard-driven physicians are often victims. It might also be called the super-executive's disease yet the vast majority of patients are ordinary people—the day laborer, the semi-skilled man bus driver, housewife, school teacher and the grocer." Blood pressure varies from time to time.

The booklet warns that anyone who tries to forecast his future by comparing blood pressure readings at different times is wasting emotional energy and probably boosting his pressure. There are obvious ties between high blood pressure and emotional difficulties.

What about treatment for high blood pressure? The first step is acquiring emotional control. This is accomplished by learning to face difficulties by thoughtful planning, aided by one's religion and the help perhaps of a psychiatrist. Certain drugs, by quieting the emotions and relaxing the muscles that tighten the blood vessels, keep blood pressure within normal or nearly normal limits while they are being given.

How Is Your Blood Pressure?

The Campaign Against Aggression Continues

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

(Ed. Note—Drew Pearson is on another tour of Europe, studying conditions there during this period of world tension and crisis. Herewith is another of his cabled dispatches from Europe.)

Berlin—I have just spent an evening behind the Iron Curtain. It's not hard to do here in Berlin where no guards patrol the line between the Russian and American sectors and where, if you flash a White House press card and look reasonably important, you can attend even the most exclusive of the Communist youth shows.

Berlin tonight is a city of vivid dramatic contrast—miles of bunting and flags everywhere, flags of every nation but particularly and ironically the flags of peace. Sandwiched in between almost every national flag is the blue and white emblem of peace. Standing out against the gaunt bomb-gutted ruins of Berlin, they made a genuine appeal to the tired population which never wants to see war again.

There were other contrasts. A Czech youth orchestra in immaculate blue and white uniforms played before the pillars of Berlin's bombed-out opera house. They played well and sang well.

At one side stood shiny new Czech buses made in the Skoda Municions Works. One thousand of these buses brought the Czech youth delegation to this year's rally and they now stood in contrast to the bomb-wrecked weary pillars of the old opera house.

Across from the Kaiser's ornate palace which the Russians tore down and removed piece by piece, a great platform stood in front of the bomb-battered museum. The inside was an empty shell but outside a Russian ballet, a girl in Georgian costume, and Finnish folk dancers all performed.

It was Russia's youth exhibition and you had to admit it was good. Lighting, acoustics and staging were all perfect; the music excellent and the dancing superb. I couldn't tell what the girl meant when she sang a ballad dedicated to Stalin and I don't think many of the German Communists could either. But they liked her voice and applauded just the same.

Above the museum, the stone horse given to Kaiser Wilhelm by Czar Alexander II peered down at this modern-day Communist rally while, on the crowd's edge a group of young Communists peered eagerly at the convertible Ford Mercury in which I had been driven across the Iron Curtain. On their shirts was written "Activist," meaning their job was to whip up and activate enthusiasm among other party members.

At this point, the audience goes wild; there is 20 minutes of applause; the Korean actors get curtain call after curtain call and Russian ladies rush up to embrace the embarrassed but happy Korean orchestra leader. The Korean show gave some idea of the propaganda barrage this youth congress was subjected to. The highlight of their performance was a dance operetta in which a Korean mother, her child killed by Americans, is the heroine. The scene which really brought down the house was that in which she throws three grenades into an American camp. Three Americans then tear her clothes half off and take turns beating her while she takes from her blouse the flag of the Peoples Republic.

Read to the headlines in American newspapers you got the impression that the Berlin youth rally was a flop. It wasn't. No rally which brings 20,000 young people together from all parts of the world is a flop and it's no use kidding ourselves.

United Press Dispatch Quoted Regarding West Virginia Defense Contract at Morgantown

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Aug. 20—Strange goings on these days at the White House—at least, as the tale is told by Senator Neely, Democrat, of West Virginia, who took a delegation of members of Congress with him the other day to see the President and afterward revealed that an important defense contract, involving millions of dollars, has become a matter of political controversy inside the Democratic party.

The Democratic leaders are engaged in a controversy as to whose influence shall prevail in the awarding of defense contracts? Why shouldn't the Department of the Army make those decisions without pressure from any side, and why should the President be asked to decide these matters, especially as between members of his own party?

Obviously, Republicans as well as Democrats pay the taxes that finance the huge defense contracts. Obviously also, the White House is not the place to decide matters of this kind—and yet when one side hears that the other side has access to the ear of the President on such matters, it is natural for the fur to fly.

Not long ago, the President denied public accusations that another member of the Democratic political hierarchy—William M. Boyle, Jr.—had any connection with the awarding of an RFC loan.

Thus far the President has said nothing as to the nature of the Fitzpatrick-Neely controversy about the ammonia plant, and the public might not have known anything about it but for the candler of Senator Neely.

THE TOTAL OF TAXES

The Bureau of the Census has figured out that the taxes collected last year by federal, state and local governments amounted to $360 for each man, woman and child. That was the record total up to that time, but this year's collections will be much higher and next year they will be still higher.

If you are the so-called average man, you could dig out your tax records for last year and discover that you paid no more than three or four hundred dollars in income taxes. Maybe there was another fifty or a hundred in real estate taxes, or maybe you rent your home and own no real estate. Distributing these payments among your average family of four, you find that you paid no more than a couple of hundred dollars each in visible 1950 taxes, probably much less. You figure you got off easy.

But you didn't. The taxes you can see—income tax, real estate tax and a few others—are only about a third of the total. Every time you bought a pack of cigarettes or a tankful of gasoline, or paid the rent or an installment on the mortgage, you paid more taxes. There were taxes in every movie ticket, every restaurant check and every bus or rail fare. The taxes are not always itemized, but they are there nevertheless, for the price of everything you buy includes not only the visible excise taxes levied on many items but also a share of the other taxes paid by the people who made, transported and sold the item.

You paid your $360 per person in 1950, perhaps more. If you are in average circumstances you paid almost three dollars in other taxes for every dollar you paid in federal income tax. By multiplying $360 by the number of persons in your family, and adding about forty per cent for the increases now in effect or being made, you can get a rough idea what the cost of big government is to you.

A Hungarian clockmaker is said to have devised a clock which marks the hours with reproductions of the voices of Lenin and Stalin. Woe to the loyal Communist who doesn't know what time it is!

ZEAL AND JOY

"In our zeal to prolong life," said a doctor recently, "let us not, without good cause, lessen the joy of living." Dr. Robert L. Levy of New York was talking to the American Medical Association about the care of heart patients, and suggested that often they may be spared many of the usual restrictions without greatly lessening their chances for survival. This is a matter of the doctor's judgment, of course, as everything must depend on the condition of the individual.

The same advice might be applied to many life situations which are a matter of individual judgment. In zeal for safety and security, we sometimes pass up pleasures and rich experiences because they seem to involve risk. It has been pointed out many times that overindulgent parents, bent on providing everything for their children, may give up their own right to joyful living and spoil the children at the same time. The example has often been cited of the frugal person who saves everything for his old age and then is unable to get any pleasure from what he has saved. Planning for tomorrow is necessary and wise, but today is with us.

How many times does a person pass up some bit of fun for no better cause than zeal to preserve his appearance of personal dignity? Zeal is an admirable quality, but it can be overexercised.

Life becomes boring for some when they have nothing to talk about, for others when they find themselves no longer talked about.

GOOD DAYS AND BAD

Good days and bad days, in reference to the weather, have their uses. There are times when it is most desirable that the air and sky be clear and the sun pleasantly bright, with enough of a breeze to fan the cheek but not enough to bend the trees. This is for the day when a man wants to play golf. At other times it is desirable that the rain descend in torrents, or at least with

MONEY FOR CULTURE

Every once in a while, I come across a program on the radio from Europe that is paid for with the American taxpayers' money. Marshall Plan money, UNESCO money, I suppose Point IV money and now Ford Foundation money (not from the taxpayers), goes to preserve European and Asiatic culture.

If the American people like to spend their money that way and permit Congress to appropriate it to save European and Asiatic culture, particularly music, that is certainly a better way than sending Howard Fast's books to Europe as representative of American literature or sending Orson Welles to South America as an example of our best. This sort of thing cost the taxpayer plenty of money in the years of our alliance with Joe Stalin and of the so-called good neighbor policy.

However, if we are going in for culture all over the world, why do we put a tax on culture at home? The Metropolitan Opera Association occasionally puts forth a mild bleat that if opera is not relieved of taxation, it will close down. Actually, in the United States there are few active and constant opera companies, the Metropolitan being the most important.

Now, if Americans dislike opera and prefer juke-boxes, that is their business, but on the radio, the Metropolitan program of the Texas Company is a great success; such a program of heavy and light opera as the Chicago Tribune provides on Saturday nights is notable, and the audition programs attract attention. In fact, many radio listeners prefer good music to the murders which have recently become a sponsors' delight as a way to keep off controversial subjects.

That opera, which is a non-profit enterprise, should be taxed when churches and schools are not taxed, is characteristic of the intellect of lawmakers, who lack an understanding of the breadth and fullness of human culture. Certainly it makes no sense to tax American opera and at the same time to subsidize European opera and symphony orchestras. If we are going to spend money on music, why not start at home? Or if we dislike music so much that we must tax it, why subsidize it in Europe?

The top American symphony orchestras face the same problem. The rich tycoons and dowagers who used to make up the deficits are no longer rich, and the parvenus who have discovered windfalls in war and the New Deal have no appreciation of music. The result is that the Philharmonic in New York is always in financial difficulties, and even the "Boston" survives because of its profits at Tanglewood to which thousands flock to listen to good music admirably played.

United Press Dispatch Quoted Regarding West Virginia Defense Contract at Morgantown

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Aug. 20—Strange: goes on these days at the White House—at least, as the tale is told by Senator Neely, Democrat, of West Virginia, who took a delegation of members of Congress with him the other day to see the President and afterward revealed that an important defense contract, involving millions of dollars, has become a matter of political controversy inside the Democratic party.

With billions of dollars of taxpayers' money being disbursed and with the President in his speeches assuming an air of righteous indignation toward those who cast doubts on the fidelity of his administration to the public interest, it is strange, indeed, to read the following from a United Press dispatch.

"A West Virginia Congressional delegation said after a talk with President Truman that New York State Democratic Chairman Paul E. Fitzpatrick is trying to get a government contract for a distilling firm to operate an ordnance plant at Morgantown, W. Va.

"Senator Matthew Neely, Democrat, and three Democratic House members—Harley O. Staggers, Cleveland M. Bailey and Mrs. Elizabeth Kee—told Mr. Truman about the tug-of-war within the Democratic Party over the plant.

"Neely said afterward that Fitzpatrick saw the President yesterday in behalf of United Distillers of America, one of the two companies seeking to operate the Morgantown plant to produce ammonia. Neely and his delegation favor awarding the contract to the Allied Chemical and Dye Corporation.

"Neely said he and his associates did not ask the President to take any specific action, but that they went to the White House because Fitzpatrick 'spoke for the other side yesterday.'

"We want to settle this thing on its merit, not on politics," Neely said.

"When the foregoing was published, Mr. Fitzpatrick denied that he had asked President Truman to intervene in awarding the contract but added that he did bring the facts to the attention of Representative Celler, Democrat, chairman of the House Judiciary Subcommittee studying monopoly.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York, August 19—The warnings against oriental power which William Randolph Hearst never was afraid to cry out, nowadays are falling under a taboo which makes timid men doubtful of their own opinions, and news paper editors afraid. The Orient is ignorant and brutal and, as Mr. Hearst wrote, its ideals are "wholly foreign and offensive" to the ideals of the western white peoples. He had the moral courage and the wisdom to say that tides of invasion from the interior of Asia were the real menace to western civilization. They threatened our religion, and such great achievements of western people as the American Constitution and our characteristic restraints on our rulers and our personal conduct.

The man, who carried on this same long campaign passionately against World War 2 until the very hour of Pearl Harbor when, as in 1917, he suspended his opposition, nevertheless was ridiculed and sneered more than any other prominent American of his time for his horrified vision of the future. Paradoxically he was called a war-monger because, in his early days, he had cried up the cause of the persecuted Cubans and covered with enthusiasm and a professional skill without precedent in the history of journalism, a tin-pot war which drove Spain out of our territorial waters. The material profits of that war were incalculable. It was the last war to pay off.

Since the Pacific war of World War II the people of the United States have been muzzled in their thinking and expression. All our information warns us that the Chinese, for all their vaunted ambitions, were guilty of a wrong against the United States in weakening through war, the power of western civilization to maintain itself against the Orient. Although we were politically separate from Europe, we had a rightful share in western civilization which was inseparable from their share. And the way to maintain it was not for Englishmen and Americans to fight Germany but for all the occident to live at peace, even submitting to rearrangements of European boundaries as incidents of no ultimate importance.

The local chairman added that it has been estimated that 27,000 families will need more help than ever before to put them back on their feet in the flood-stricken area. This, Shufeldt said, is the equivalent to assisting in the rehabilitation of a city of 100,000 inhabitants.

his contract. The finesse would succeed, and that would be that. At four hearts, life was not so simple. South needed either a good break in clubs or a very good break in diamonds. What's more, he had to play the hand very carefully to take advantage of whatever good fortune might come his way.

West opened the ten of spades, and South won in his own hand. He next drew three rounds of trumps and cashed the rest of the spades, ending in dummy. Then he could afford to lead a club to try the finesse of the club ten.

West won with the jack of clubs and found himself up a tree. If he led the last spade dummy could ruff while South discarded a loser. (That's why declarer stripped out the spades before tackling the clubs.)

If he led a diamond, South needed only the jack to win three tricks in the suit. West therefore gritted his teeth and laid down the king of clubs.

When the club king held, West continued with his last club, allowing East to win with the ace. This left West on the ground but put East up in the branches of that tree.

If East returned the last club, South would ruff and discard a diamond from dummy; and then a simple diamond finesse would be enough. East therefore returned the six of diamonds as the only chance to defeat the contract.

South's only chance to make the contract consisted in finding the ten of diamonds in the East hand and the king of diamonds in the west hand. Hence he played the nine of diamonds.

This finished off West. If he had up the king, declarer had three natural diamond tricks; and if he ducked, the nine would hold and South would be in position to repeat the diamond finesse.

Good Fruit Crop
Expected in State

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 20 (AP)—A good fruit crop is expected in New York state this year.

In its August report, released over the week-end, the State Agriculture Department said the apple harvest should total 19,975,000 bushels. That would be seven per cent above last year, but slightly below the 1949 total.

A pear crop of 1,072,000 bushels, about the same as last year, is predicted.

Peach orchards are expected to yield 1,280,000 bushels, 25 per cent above 1950, sour cherries are expected to total 31,200 tons, 15 per cent above last year, and sweet cherries, 4,400-tons, about the same as in 1950.

Brooklyn Man Killed

Middletown, N. Y., Aug. 20 (AP)—Thomas Stacy, 23, of Brooklyn was killed Saturday in the auto racing accident. His car jumped from the track, crashed through a wooden fence and overturned in the featured race on the last day of the Orange County Fair.

Ten per cent of all drivers involved in automobile accidents in 1949 were women.

Brooklyn Farmer Arraigned on Charge

New York, Aug. 20 (AP)—A Brooklyn farmer was arraigned on a charge of felonious assault yesterday after a .22 caliber bullet he said was aimed at a rabbit in his vegetable garden struck an ex-G.I.

Released in $500 bail was Alfonso Fiero, 66.

In King's County Hospital with a bullet wound in his back was Leonard R. Maisano, 33, a power press operator. The hospital said he would recover.

The bullet from Fiero's gun apparently ricocheted off a stone and struck Maisano, who was on the other side of a thick hedge, 300 feet away.

Fiero heard about the wounded man later and told detectives his story.

Hughes' Closing '63' Wins Herdegen Memorial Tournament With 208 Ties 18-Year Record At Woodstock Course

Scorching the sun-baked Woodstock Country Club fairways with a sensational seven-under-par 63, George Hughes, the sweet-swinging Twaalfskill Golf Club star, wrapped up the first annual Father Herdegen Memorial golf tournament with a 54-hole total of 208, before a huge gallery.

Seven strokes off the pace was Leon Randall, of Wiltwyck, who had led at the end of 36 holes with a 143 medal.

But on this bright, Sunday afternoon, even Ben Hogan would have had his hands full with the mild-mannered young greenskeeper who tied an 18-year course record with his 63.

The original mark of 63 was set by Judson Phillips back in 1933 and had withstood the assault of many of the area's best amateurs since that time.

Only One Bogie

Hughes, with the title already stashed away after a phenomenal display of driving and putting wizardry, stood on the threshold of Woodstock all-time fame when he approached the 54th tee.

Here the hole calls for a shot across a brook, with a narrow approach to a green that is heavily trapped on both sides. Hughes' four-iron shot was pulled slightly to the left and he landed in a trap. He studied it carefully while the crowd watched, immobile and silent, then blasted out onto the green but still 16 feet away. He stroked the putt boldly, going for the par-3 that would have given him the new record, but he went three feet past and canned the return putt for a bogie-4.

Hass Eight Birds

That bogie was the only in-dication on Hughes' amazing card that showed eight birdies, nine pars and the one bogie that deprived him of the all-time amateur record in Woodstock.

Hughes racked up his '63' with relentless consistency and accuracy. He birdied the first, third, fifth and eighth, both times around.

Richmond, Va. — Marvin Bass was named football coach at William and Mary College after investigation of alleged "irregularities" in athletic department.

Hershey, Pa. — Philadelphia Eagles came from behind for 24-9 victory over Pittsburgh Steelers in National Football League exhibition.

Durham, N. C. — Doug Sanders, Cedartown, Ga., defeated Don Welch, Whitefish, Mont., 6 and 5, in 36-hole final of Junior Chamber of Commerce National junior golf title.

Sioux City Open To Buck White

Sioux City, Ia., Aug. 20 — Buck White, a 38-year-old veteran of professional golf's brigade, has that victory he has been after since 1946.

It was five years ago that the curly-haired pro from Greenwood, Miss., won the Memphis, Tenn., Open. But Buck didn't repeat along the PGA circuit until yesterday when he pulled a sizzling 64 finish to win the Sioux City Open with a 272-16 under par for the 72-hole route.

The triumph was worth $2,400 to White, who wasn't listed among the top 25 money winners before the Sioux City meet.

The southerner's fast pace overtook the faltering Ed (Porky) Oliver who led the pack with 202 for 54 holes. Porky stumbled on the closing holes and finished with a par 72, good for a second place tie at 274 with defending champion Jack Burke, Jr., and Skeet Riegel.

Burke, tied for 25th at 36 holes, rallied for 66's on the last two rounds yesterday.

Hughes' Closing '63' Wins Herdegen Memorial Tournament With 208

Ties 18-Year Record At Woodstock Course

Scorching the sun-baked Woodstock Country Club fairways with a sensational seven-under-par 63, George Hughes, the sweet-swinging Twaalstik Golf Club star, wrapped up the first annual Father Herdegen Memorial golf tournament with a 54-hole total of 208, before a huge gallery.

Seven strokes off the pace was Leon Randall, of Wiltwyck, who had led at the end of 36 holes with a 143 medal.

But on this bright, Sunday afternoon, even Ben Hogan would have had his hands full with the mild-mannered young greenskeeper who tied an 18-year course record with his 63.

The original mark of 63 was set by Judson Phillips back in 1933 and had withstood the assault of many of the area's best amateurs since that time.

Only One Bogie

Hughes, with the title already stashed away after a phenomenal display of driving and putting wizardry, stood on the threshold of Woodstock all-time fame when he approached the 54th tee.

Here the hole calls for a shot across brook, with a narrow approach to a green that is heavily trapped on both sides. Hughes' four-iron shot was spinned slightly to the left and he landed in a trap. He studied it carefully while the crowd watched, immobile and silent, then blasted neatly onto the green but still 16 feet away. He stroked the putt boldly, going for the par-3 that would have given him the new record, but he went three feet past and canned the return putt for a bogie-4.

Hugs Eight Birdies

That bogie was the only indiscretion on Hughes' amazing card that showed eight birdies, nine pars and the one bogie that deprived him of the all-time amateur record in Woodstock.

Hughes racked up his '63' with relentless consistency and accuracy. He birdied the first, third, fifth and eighth, both times around.

There was quite a story attached to the birdies on the fifth and eighth the first swing around the course. Hughes had quickly caught up with Randall in the medal race when he opened the day with a 3-foot birdie on the first hole (37th) and a spectacular 25-footer on the third green. This tied him with Randall at 155.

On the long par-5 fifth (41st), Hughes' second shot landed in the penalty ditch on the fly. The ball struck a rock squarely and ricocheted on a straight line to rough behind the right hand trap. He quickly capitalized the break by pitching to within seven feet of the pin and running down the putt for a birdie-4.

A 4-Wood Shot

A short time later on the No. 8 hole, when he led by only a stroke, 170 to 171, Hughes faded his tee shot and it landed among the trees on the right side of the fairway above the brook. There was a clattering of golf ball and tree limbs and suddenly the ball appeared on the fairway about two yards in from the boundary line.

Hughes again capitalized the smile of the gods when he uncorked the most dazzling shot of the day. Carefully surveying the setup—he still had to clear the ledge of rocks and rough if he were going all the way—he chose a 4-wood. The shot was crisp, clean and jet-propelled. It soared on a low line toward the rock embankment and, just when it appeared it would sink, it took that second flight of the well-stroked golf shot and rolled across the fairway, up the green apron and came to rest pin high, eight feet from the cup. He dropped it for the birdie-3 to boost his lead by two strokes. He had the field to himself after that.

Hughes' putting on the tricky Woodstock greens was an amazing display of concentration and stroking finesse. The eight birds he ran down were successively 3 feet, 25-feet, 7-feet, 8-feet, 5-feet, 7-feet, 15-feet, 5-feet.

Is this going to be the calamitous 1942 campaign all over again for the skidding Brooklyn Dodgers?

Just a week ago, the Dodgers were riding high and fancy free, laughing their way to the pennant with a 13½ game bulge over the runnerup New York Giants.

Following yesterday's 13-4 pasting in Boston, the Brooklyn's lead is now a "mere" eight games over the rejuvenated Giants. That means that the Giants, who whipped Philadelphia, 5-4, for their ninth straight, have made up five and one-half games in one week.

Those eight lengths still represent an apparently safe margin for Brooklyn, especially since the Dodgers have only 39 games left to play. But back in 1942, Brooklyn enjoyed an 8½-game lead over the St. Louis Cardinals with 35 games to go—and lost the pennant to the Redbirds by two games.

Indians on Top

Cleveland's Indians regained undisputed possession of first place by splitting a pair with the White Sox in Chicago while Philadelphia's A's were burying the New York Yankees, 15-1. The Indians won the opener, 4-0, and lost the nightcap, 7-6, to move a half game in front of the defending champions.

Boston's bounce-back Red Sox whipped Washington, 8-3, and climbed to within 3½ games of the Indians. Fifth-place Detroit swept a pair from St. Louis' cellar-dwelling Browns, 5-2 and 6-2.

The St. Louis Cardinals vaulted over the Phils into third place, winning two from Cincinnati, 5-4 and 5-1. Pittsburgh's Pirates took two from the Chicago Cubs, 4-2 and 5-4.

A Chicago turnout of 46,864 saw Early Wynn blank the White Sox with seven hits in the opener, then watched the Sox win the nightcap with a five-run seventh.

Acheson Defends Self Against 12 Specific Charges

Washington, Aug. 20 (P)—Secretary of State Acheson has defended himself against a volley of accusations by a Republican critic, Lt. Gov. Goodwin J. Knight of California.

Twelve specific accusations which Knight made, Acheson said in an exchange of correspondence made public yesterday, are "either entirely incorrect or distortions of the truth."

Knight, in a speech at Chico, Calif., on April 17, had declared that "no man in modern history has been so distrusted and despised as Dean Acheson." He added: "He has no friends and no defenders. He stays only because of the stubborn will of the President."

Knight was then challenged by John B. Elliott, Los Angeles civic leader and Democrat, to back up his criticism. Knight produced the 12 accusations, which Elliott sent to the State Department. Acheson forwarded replies from his staff. Elliott made the correspondence public.

Accusations, Replies

Among the accusations made by Knight and the replies were:

1. That Acheson had sent out instructions to department personnel in Asia that Formosa was doomed and expendable. The reply was that the department sent out a propaganda directive designed to minimize the reaction if Formosa should fall.

2. That Acheson approved a $90,000,000 loan to Communist Poland in 1946 against the advice of U. S. Ambassador Arthur Bliss Lane, and that the loan was handled by a member of Acheson's law firm. The department replied that Acheson had severed all connections with his law firm in 1941, that no member of the firm approached him in any way during the loan negotiations and that Acheson did approve the loan after it had been "favorably considered" by other officials if the loan was subsequently cut off in 1948.

3. That Acheson had said on July 20 there were no Communists in the State Department and "this statement has since proved to be completely false and untrue." The department replied the secretary said he "knew of no Communists" in the department and that a security staff of 100 persons which has operated with the FBI does not know of any Reds in the State Department.

Keepers of Records
Mark Three New
Speeds in Books

Jacoby on Canasta

Know How to Use Your Luck

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

Detroit, Aug. 20 (AP)—Keepers of American and world records began rewriting their books today, because no less than three speed marks were cracked over the week-end in the national air races.

For example, they started a game of Canasta fairly late the other night at the Cavendish Club in New York. Two of the players knew what they were doing, and the other two were bridge players out for a brief vacation. The two experienced Canasta players cut together as partners. They had a very lucky time together.

On the first hand, one of them melded three aces and three sixes from his hand. His partner, at his next play, drew and then held.

A, K-K-K, Q-Q, J, 8, 7, 5, 3, 2. His play turned out very well, but it wasn't luck. Just for the fun of it, decide what you would do before you read any farther.

Our "lucky" hero knew that his partner could have stopped after melding three aces. Only 50 points were needed for the initial meld, so why were the three sixes added? The reason for the additional meld was to show a very fine play for a fast out.

This kind of signal calls for cooperation, so the lucky man promptly added his ace to make a four-card base. Next he put down three kings, just in case they were needed to take care of an odd card or two in his partner's hand. Then he seriously considered adding the deuce to the aces or putting down the deuce with a pair of queens. He finally decided to meld nothing more than that, turn, and discarded his black three.

The original melder had five cards left in his hand; three wild cards and a pair of kings. At his next turn he melded out, before the opponents had even made their first meld.

Of course, it was very good luck that the original melder's odd cards happened to be a pair of kings. If it had been another pair, he'd have needed a good draw or another turn to meld out. If he had held two odd cards instead of a pair, maybe he wouldn't have made that dramatic six-card meld from his hand.

But while we're talking about luck, let's remember that the lucky pair could not have taken advantage of their good fortune unless they had made the right plays. It took skill and partnership understanding to make the most of their cards.

Mr. Jacoby is unable to answer individual questions on Canasta from readers. However, he will include the most frequently asked questions in his column.

GOP Senators Hit

gating group joined in a majority report which itself renewed charges made by the committee last February that the big government lending agency had fallen prey to "an influence ring with White House contacts."

The new report from the Democrats, adopted by the full banking committee and sent along to the Senate, said those charges were "fully substantiated" in a new series of public hearings held after Mr. Truman had called the preliminary report asinine.

Advises New Comments

It added new comments about what it called an "accepted practice" among borrowers of seeking entrance to the RFC by means of a Democratic national committee introduction. And it said RFC's former board of directors, now superseded by W. Stuart Symington as one-man administrator, "tacitly acknowledged its responsiveness to external influence."

The sharper and more personal language, by Senators Cephaard (R-Ind.) and Bricker (R-Ohio), was in a bulky minority report which also was submitted to the Senate.

Fulbright called their statement "scurrilous" in a postscript to the report that he regretted it had to be "printed at public expense."

And Senator Benton (D-Conn.), a member of the Banking Committee but not of the RFC Subcommittee, said the Cephaard-Bricker document "abounds with falsehoods."

Benton's Reply

Much of it doesn't even deal with the RFC, Benton said in a statement.

"Congressional committees and individual members increasingly have been using Congress as a forum to attack individuals, for partisan political advantage," he continued. "This minority report is another step and a big step, down that unhappy road."

"This minority report seems to me a political document designed to undermine confidence in our government." The tone and spirit of this minority is so misleading, that it contaminates many sections of the report which are accurate."

Altogether, the exchange amounted to a signal that the political shooting over RFC and its lending practices, going on for years, will be heard right on through the 1952 campaign and probably longer.

The Republican minority report called Mr. Truman and Boyle "graduates of one of the most corrupt political machines in the history of any state," a reference to the old Pendleton set-up centered in Kansas City, Mo., with tie-ups in St. Louis.

"They have transferred Pendleton politics to the national level," the report charged. "Morality in government has declined to the lowest ebb in the nation's history. The American people are deeply ashamed and rightly disturbed."

Brown Your Pot Roast
You can take your choice of flouring or not flouring your meat when you're preparing a pot roast; but whatever method you use be sure to brown the meat well in a little fat before adding the liquid. Thorough browning helps to make rich gravy.

Republican Report

about entering the post-hearing McArthur dispute.

May Be Chief Answer

McMahon's statement may be the administration's chief answer from among members of the Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Services Committees which conducted the ouster inquiry.

The joint committee voted last Friday, 20 to 3, not to issue a report to the Senate on the long investigation. After the vote was taken, Chairman Russell (D-Ga.) said the majority feeling was that any report at this time would only "revive better controversy at a critical period in the Korean peace talks."

It was decided, however, to let individual members of the inquiry committee file a statement of their views. The statements are to be included in the hearing record when it is formally sent to the Senate. The week-end report of the eight Republicans is in that category.

Can't See Unity

"I don't know how we could unify Korea politically and economically now after the United Nations once divided it into North and South Korea," George said.

"I also believe it will be awfully hard to reach any cease-fire agreement or armistice in Korea as long as there has been no real military decision. That's the trouble in Korea that sooner or later we'll have to face."

Some Republicans didn't agree with their colleagues in condemning the methods by which President Truman removed MacArthur.

Senator Morse (R-Ore.) said in a week-end statement the President would have been "derelict in his duty" if he hadn't fired MacArthur.

Senator Saltonstall (R-Mass.) said in a letter accompanying the Republican report that lawmakers ought to be looking to present and future problems "rather than looking backward in anger and with recriminations."

Eight Republicans Involved

The tight Republicans who sailed into the administration's Asiatic policies were Bridges, Cain and Senators H. Alexander Smith of New Jersey, Hickenlooper of Iowa, Knowland of California, Wiley of Wisconsin, Brewster of Maine and Flanders of Vermont.

Calling Acheson's policies "a catastrophic failure, the Republicans declared:

"The conviction that the administration's Far East policy was one of appeasement toward communism was proven to be a fact as a result of the investigation."

The report said the State Department changed its policies notably with regard to China and Formosa—because (1) it couldn't defend them, (2) Korea had "proven the wisdom of policies which the department had previously so long scorned" and (3) because of the "groundswell of public opinion."

Accuses Truman

The Bridges group accused Mr. Truman of "doing nothing" to
